It seems to have been forgotten by the Police Board that away back last April they tried two captains, who are still in command of their precincts. Tried them on charges similar to those on which Capts. Doherty, Cross and Devery were tried, and backed up by testimony similar to that adduced in these later cases.

All of the horses brought wonderfully high prices, and the values, in fact, exceeded the fondest expectations of Leigh & Rose.

The last named member of the firm bought only one horse, and that was Clifford. He has an exceeding fondness for that animal, and etermined to possess him at any price.

John E. Madden started things on Clifford with a bid of $4,900, J. E. Cushing acting for Ed Corrigan. "Bob" Rose then joined in, running the price rapidly up a thousand at a clip. Chris Smith and T. W. Coulter also had a hand at the bidding, but all these finally, dropped out, leaving J. E. Madden and "Bob" Rose bidding alone.

Madden's last hid was $24,500, and then, seeing that Rose was determined to have the colt, he let him go. Rose's raise was $500, and for the fancy price of $25,000 the colt remained he property of one of his former owners.

The sale was under the management of Woodard & Shankin, of Lexington, Ky. George A. Bain was the persuasive gentleman who coaked the dollars in exchange for thoroughbreds.

that the wall of the slip bent back until it reached the pier. His ignorance of this fact nearly caused his death. He stole out on the pier, and when Officer John Meggher's back was turned climbed innder the string-piece, where he divested himself of most of his clothing preparatory to taking a swim.

The Bremen, with her flecks crowded with passengers, was entering her slip at $10 o'clock. As she was under considerable headway the pila steered her against the lower bulkhead. This was not calculated to cause any enthusiasm, especially as the decision of the Salling Committee of the Royal Dartmouth Yacht Club yesterday, in not awarding the prize to Vigilant because the race could not be finished within the time. He took in the situation at a glance.

A second later the bulkhead closed the space where the man had been. Meagher had sprang to the deek and was pulling Smith over the striggplece, when the bulkhead caught Smith's right foot and crushed it. All attempts to disladge it were unavailing until the boat sheered off and the bulkhead resumed its normal position.

Smith fainted from pain and fright occasioned by his narrow escape.

The passengers cheered the policeman. The injured man was removed to Chambers Street Hospital.
